

L&D experts gear up for Training & Development Asia 2016

Asia Pacific – Top HR leaders and senior training specialists from Asia's biggest companies have started signing up for Training & Development Asia, the region's biggest conference on corporate training & development. Organised by Human Resources, Asia's only HR media & events brand, Training & Development Asia will return in Hong Kong, Kuala Lumpur and Singapore this year with the most sought-after learning & development gurus who will deliver comprehensive discussions and bold insights on organisational learning.

"A one-dimensional approach to corporate learning won't survive in today's business environment so HR professionals are encouraged to explore various techniques and underscore the business value of training & development programmes," said Aditi Sharma Kalra, regional editor of Human Resources magazine. "Now in its fourth year, Training & Development Asia is committed to equipping senior HR leaders and training & development professionals with the latest practices, practical strategies, and access to first-rate resources."

Designed for senior HR professionals from well-respected organisations, Training & Development Asia is an exclusive two-day event that tackles trends in learning & development, innovative shifts in HR technology, organisational change, and the implementation and measurement of the success of talent development programmes. Training & Development 2016 will address the most critical issues being faced by HR leaders today through keynote presentations, panel sessions, tracked breakout workshops, and scheduled networking breaks.

"Training & Development Asia 2016 is brimming with interactive sessions and exclusive opportunities which will spawn deeper connections among HR leaders and senior learning & development specialists from across the region," said Sanna Lun, regional producer at Human Resources magazine. "The event recognises that it's time for the industry to take training & development programmes to the next level and get the most out of emerging trends and resources."

Among the top-notch companies represented in past Training & Development Asia conferences were AXA, KPMG, Sanofi, Seagate Technology, Shell, Singapore Telecommunications, Visa and many more. All presenters & panellists, such as Elma Diala-Pangilinan, HR business partner and head for learning and organisational development of Nielsen Company, are director or vice president level HR professionals with regional responsibility.

Held in Hong Kong, Kuala Lumpur and Singapore in June 2016, Training & Development Asia is the region's biggest conference on learning & development strategy. The two-day annual event is focused on best practice corporate learning strategy, features an agenda dominated by case studies and leading global thought leadership, and attracts a large audience of senior HR generalists and learning & development specialists as well as CEOs, CFOs and COOs closely involved in their companies' learning & development strategy.

To get a global and Pan-Asian regional view of learning & development and to increase your knowledge and skills across the corporate learning spectrum do not miss Training & Development Asia in June 2016.
